[1] The book is in a world inspired by 19th-century Europe. [2] Crooked Kingdom takes place a few days after the events of the first book of the Six Crows. [3] The plot is expressed from the close points of view of six different characters, together with the first and last chapters in terms of two smaller characters. There are six crows at the end of the broken kingdom; are composed of duology. Bardugo's trilogy Shadow and Bones, Nikolai Duology and the independent collection of stories (The Language of thorns) are in the same universe, which fanbase kindly calls grishaverse. Plot In the prologue, Grisha was kidnapped by a man named Emil Retvenko by a winged Shu man. The book opens at a casino known as Club Cumulus, where Jesper and Nina keep jan van ecko's attorney, Cornelis Smeet, an employee, while Kaz and Wylan search for his office for jan van ecko real estate information. When they find what they need, Kaz plans to kidnap Van Eckov's pregnant young wife, Alyx, and replace her for Ine, who is captured and almost tortured. Meanwhile, Jesper's father Colm arrives in town to meet him as the bank pushes the deadline for the debt that Jesper owes. When Jesper meets his father, they're attacked, but they manage to escape. Kaz tells Jesper's father to give them three days to get the money and ask him to wait at a big hotel in the city. Then the crew's abduction was successful, and van Eck's wife swapped it for Ine. During the trade, three shu soldiers with naive abilities attacked Nina, Jesper and other Grisha in the area. They all manage to escape after Nina shoots one of them out of their eyes and Wylan shoots the other. The crew meets in their hideouts, and Kaz reveals his plan to sabotage Van Eck's sugar silos with a chemical evil (jester's nickname Wyvil nickname). This will raise the price of sugar, and Kaz has already bought shares in other sugar companies. Nina and Inej convince Kazo to use one of Van Eck's ships to convince the rest of Grisha in the city. While Kaz and Wylan are trying to steal the seals they need from the van Eck house, Nina and Inej infiltrate the sugar silos. But they are all under attack, and it is revealed that Pekka Rollins is in the league with Van Eck. Pekka is also attacking the hideout kaz used to hide Kuwei, where Jesper and Matthias were guarding him. They all run away and meet at the hotel where Jesper's father is staying. Nina shows the group her strange and terrifying new ability to control corpses, speculating that it may be the result of its survival of the withdrawal of jurda parema. Kaz draws up another plan and announces an auction for the indenture of Kuwei, which makes everyone think he's crazier than usual. At the auction, Kaz blamed the gris from the embassy as the Tides Council. They claim the auction was sufficient because Van Eck gave money to the people. The money was really channeling the crows themselves by fooling the Trading Council. Van Eck is under arrest. They managed to fake Kuwei's death and get him out. Matthias was shot while on the job, and later died. Kaz bluffs that Pekka believed he had a son buried alive. Then he leaves town in search of his son. With Van Eck gone, Wylan inherits the qualities of his family. In the end, Kaz finds Ine's parents, threatens the real world of Tides, and Inej is threatening Pekka from his business.
